Wine Tips

Genetically Modified Organisms (GMOs)

Genetic engineering is used by scientists to change the DNA of living organisms. DNA is the blueprint for the individuality of an organism. The organism relies upon the information stored in its DNA for the management of every biochemical process. The life, growth and unique features of the organism depend on its DNA. The segments of DNA which have been associated with specific features or functions of an organism are called genes. Molecular biologists have discovered many enzymes which change the structure of DNA in living organisms. Some of these enzymes can cut and join strands of DNA. Using such enzymes, scientists learned to cut specific genes from DNA and to build customized DNA using these genes. Genetic engineers believe they can improve the foods we eat by doing this.

Genetic engineering is the largest food experiment in the history of the world. We are all the guinea pigs. There are about 40 varieties of genetically engineered crop approved for marketing in the U.S. As a result, 60- 70% of the foods you eat and the beverages you drink contain genetically engineered (GE) components. Genetically engineered foods contain substances that have never been a part of the human food supply. They are not subjected to rigorous pre-market safety testing. And THEY ARE NOT LABELED. Is genetic engineering safe for consumption? Safe for the environment? Safe for the future of mankind? No long- term studies have been done. As of yet, no one can answer these questions. Do you want out of the experiment? Start by opting to purchase food and beverages that are certified to be GMO FREE, (such as Advintage wine kits).

Probiotic Beer

Probiotics are live microorganisms that are believed to confer health benefit on the host by improving its intestinal microbial balance. This, in turn, may lead to a possible improvement of LDL/HDL cholesterol ratio and may result in modest reductions in blood pressure. All Festa Brew beer has live probiotic cells, millions of them. Another great reason to have beer ready for the summer!
